Mapam row over party post

By MARK SEGAL

Jerusalem Post Reporter
TEL AVIV. — Mapam's Secretary-General, Mr. Meir Talmi, has denied that there are any political implications in the resignation of Mr. Naphthal Ben-Moshe as the party's organizational secretary.

Mr. Ben-Moshe is a leader of the anti-Alignment minority in Mapam. Mr. Talmi dismissed Mr. Ben-Moshe's charges of procrastination by the party leadership on the election of new party officers. He said that Mr. Ben-Moshe's complaints had a personal basis, and that it had already been decided by a party group, "the Ribnut," to recommend a successor to Mr. Ben-Moshe.

Replying to Mr. Talmi, Mr. Ben-Moshe said that "if our argument isn't political, what is it?"

Mr. Ben-Moshe reiterated his demand that the party central committee be convened to decide who should occupy his job. "Apparently they don't want to convene the central committee because they are afraid I might get re-elected."

He claimed that his work had been hampered ever since the party convention, and said he had received many expressions of support, even from the pro-Alignment majority.

At the recent Mapam convention, the anti-Alignment minority reassessed its one-third standing in the party, and later the party's executive council was selected according to ability to one of the two blocs. Another element in the dispute is the intention of Kibbutz Arzi, which provides the financial backbone of Mapam, to tighten its control over the party's organization. Both probable successors to Mr. Ben-Moshe (Mr. Ephraim Rosen, of Kibbutz Sarid, and Mr. Uri Yoffe, of Kibbutz Yaskum) are from the kibbutz movement.

Copter saves workers after fall into tower

By ABRAHAM YAHIEL

Jerusalem Post Reporter
NETANYA. — An Air Force helicopter had to be called on Friday afternoon to assist in extricating four labourers trapped when the scaffolding they were using to pour a concrete roof of a 53-metre high water-tower collapsed.

The four men fell into the reservoir part of the tower, 12 metres deep, after two-thirds of the roof's concrete had been poured. They managed to break their fall by grabbing protruding boards, but Netanyahu firemen who arrived promptly and climbed the tower could not extricate them because of the debris.

The helicopter lowered one of the firemen, with a stretcher, to the men, and the men were taken out by one Yitzhak Elron, Yehuda Fisher, Menashe Manal — all aged 35, and all from Elshon Leshon — and Elrahm Barum, 25, from Khan Yunis, were taken to Elmel Yoffe Hospital in Haifa, where all were reported to be out of danger.

Goldmann misquoted

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Jewish Congress, has stated that he was misquoted in the "Yiddish" report on his remarks in the symposium held on Thursday at a symposium on the Holocaust held in Jerusalem.

Dr. Goldmann stated: "What I really said was that several Jewish organizations were reluctant to try to get permission from President Roosevelt to transfer the money which was legally forbidden because of the state of war with Nazi Germany. When the President finally gave his approval it was the State Department which sabotaged the transfer until it was too late to save the children. There was no difficulty in making the money available once the permission of the President was obtained."

dren by Arab terror gangs," it was obviously not the body capable of acting on any of the complex issues of the Arab-Israeli conflict, he said.

"In this Passover season one is tempted to say that the exodus of the Israelites from ancient Egypt would have been condemned by this Security Council, had the Egyptians asked for it," the Israeli representative added.

"Israel expects the Government of Lebanon to act forthwith to eliminate the terrorist bases and centres within its borders."

Lebanese Ambassador Edouard Ghorrat expressed himself "very unhappy" with the final resolution which, even before it was revised, had been "not satisfactory to us."

He recalled that in previous resolutions after attacks on Lebanon the Council had warned Israel of the possible consequences, in the form of other steps or measures open to it, if these were repeated.

Ghorrat said the operative paragraph condemning "all acts of violence which endanger or take innocent human lives" must not be interpreted except in connection with the other sections of the resolution.

He termed Tekoa's remarks "nothing but another expression of contempt for the Council."

Mr. Tekoa would like to tell you that you and the General Assembly of the U.N. do not represent the real international public opinion," he said. "Only a few little gatherings in various parts of the world who make expressions in favour of Israel, they alone represent enlightened opinion."

Speaking a second time, Mr. Tekoa said: "I would like to say to the representative of Lebanon that over control of the ship and steered it into port.

Sightseers were banned from the port and even port workers needed special permits to enter. The police guarded the roads leading to the ports and only authorized cars were allowed into the port area. After special arrangements with Ashdod port authorities, newsmen were allowed to view the arrival of the liner from abroad, but were barred behind police barriers. The black-and-white ship was not festively decked out and it bore only four flags, those of Israel and Britain's merchant marine, the Cunard line, and a white-and-red ensign which means that the ship is under control of the port's pilot.

On the other hand, the pier was decorated with flags and large banners. There was a children's band from Kiryat Gat that added to the festive atmosphere. Among the officials that awaited the liner here, in addition to Transport Minister Peres, were the director of the Port Authority, Aharon Remez, the director of Ashdod port, Mordechai Berger and Ashdod Mayor Zvi Zilker.

Reporters were not allowed aboard ship. The ship's Captain Mortimer Hehir did not even hold a press conference as had been scheduled. Instead, he sent down to the pier Staff Capt. Douglas Ridley who held an impromptu press conference on the docks.

Capt. Ridley admitted that the ship had been under strict security which reached its peak on the night before arrival in Israel, when the ship was ordered to douse its lights. He denied that the ship had been under radio silence during several parts of its voyage.

Capt. Ridley revealed that "the ship had steered away from the North African shore. It meant a 25-mile change in course for us, but as you see, this did not alter our timetable and we arrived here an hour before time. Capt. Ridley also admitted that there had been some Israeli security men aboard but he declined to answer whether the ship was also carrying Royal Marines.

Another half the passengers went ashore yesterday morning to go on sightseeing tours. The others remained on board mainly because of the Sabbath.

Questioned by The Jerusalem Post about the demands made by religious circles not to allow the ship to berth on the Sabbath, Mr. Peres said, "I think the Sabbath should be respected. All we did was to dock the ship. A minute after docking the ship turned into a floating hotel and as you know, hotels are out of my jurisdiction."

Concerning the security measures, he expressed the belief that these had been overplayed by the press. "The safe arrival of the ship proves that we are able to make all the trips to and from Israel and that persons are not taking an immense risk even coming by sea."

Most of the passengers disembarked from the ship said it was an uneventful trip. Security measures were not seen but felt.

A young social researcher from San Francisco, Mark Bartel, said that the trip had actually been dull.

A security officer of the ship told The Jerusalem Post that the main security checks were carried out on boarding and disembarking. The passengers then must pass a body check and carry three passes, an Israeli one, a ship pass and an identification card or passport.

One of the proudest couples who disembarked yesterday were Morton and Lee Nussbaum from New York City. They had brought along on the tour their eight-year-old granddaughter Judy, and six-year-old grandson Jayson Littman. Mrs. Nussbaum pointed to her grandchildren and said, "These two little children, they managed on both sides nights to steal the oftentimes under the noses of the security guards. In return for it the children received from their grandparents seven dollars each."

Another passenger, Joe Conway, of London, told The Post, "It has been a marvellous trip. We had a full schedule of activities on board. There was no sign of tension. He said: 'We had a wonderful order of 500 people on our way to Israel.'"

The tourists were last night given a reception in Ashdod by the Mayor and municipality.

Knesset unit against closure of Arad Chemicals plants

Jerusalem Post Staff

The Knesset Finance Committee last week concluded its discussions on Arad Chemicals, held in the wake of the State Comptroller's report on the firm last August. The Committee concurred with the findings of the report, but decided against recommending the closure of the chemical plants.

In spite of the mistakes made and difficulties encountered in planning and running-in of the project, the Committee felt, closing it down or suspending its operation after so much has been invested would mean "the end of any efforts to develop chemical industry based on the country's natural resources."

The Committee noted that the Development Minister has appointed — as was suggested by the Committee in December — a committee of impartial experts to study the problem connected with the plant's operation by the fluidized-bed process, study alternative methods for its operation, compare the methods in terms of long-range feasibility and make its recommendations by the end of July, 1973.

The Committee also noted the Government is determined to press the American Madera Company, which was partner in establishing the complex, to bear its share of the responsibility for the plant's losses.

The Government has announced it would sue Madera if necessary. The plant's progress will be closely followed, and a detailed report would have to be submitted before the Finance Committee would consider approving any additional financial commitment for the firm, the Committee concluded.

The Arad Chemical Company was established in 1968, as a partnership between the Government (through several Government-owned firms), and the Madera Company. It had been planned, originally, that the complex would go into production of phosphoric acid by using the Aman method, perfected here, but the Madera Company later insisted on utilizing the fluidized-bed method — newly developed by Allied Chemicals (of the U.S.).

Although many experts in Israel favoured the Aman method, the Government went along with Madera's (a subsidiary of the Giant Allied Chemicals), and the plant began to operate in 1971 — after various delays and problems, including a giant blaze which caused $14m. damage. Just as the plant began to operate, however, the Madera Company sold out its share to the Government for the exact amount it had invested.

A year after the plant began to operate, no phosphoric acid was being produced. A giant reactor, built to produce hydrochloric acid (HCL) from Dead Sea brine, had its plaster roof cave in. Without the HCL, the plant's second reactor, which combines HCL with phosphates to produce the phosphoric acid, stood idle. After some $120m. had been invested, it was estimated that $150,000 and several months' work would be required to repair the faulty reactor. Arad Chemical spokesmen estimated, at the end of 1972, that losses would amount to some $120m. by the end of 1973. Meanwhile, the second reactor began to show faults.

Arad Chemicals was coupled with the now defunct Vered Corporation several times in the Knesset, in motions of no confidence against the Government, tabled by Gahal.

Gahal's leading economist, Dr. Yohanan Bader, at the Knesset Finance Committee, criticized the Government's role in establishment of the chemical plant. He proposed that the Committee recommend to the Knesset a bill limiting the Government's powers to undertake industrial or business ventures only by the Knesset's prior approval for each specific case. The bill would specify that approval is to be given only for essential ventures, which could not attract private enterprise. Dr. Bader's proposed recommendation was defeated.

Body exhumed after murder is suspected

GAZA. — Quick action by the police here led yesterday to the discovery of a murder believed to have been committed in "defence of the family's honour."

After learning that a young woman whose death had not been satisfactorily explained had been buried in Khan Yunis on Thursday, the police had the body exhumed and an autopsy performed. They learnt that the body was that of Vadad Salzman Sha'at, 18, from Rafah, and that she had been killed by strangulation.

The girl had been single, and had become pregnant.

Her brother, Mohammed, 22, is reported to have been arrested.

THE HERMON RESORT site will be open to tourists throughout the year in future. Until now it has been open during the skiing season only.

Students are held—then freed—after protest in Moscow

(UPI). — Moscow Jews, activists to white-haired students at synagogue Sunday to congratulate them on their Jewish emigration. American visitors had staged a demonstration at the office on Friday and had been held for eight hours. Tourists said they were of the "concerned for Soviet Jewry" group.

The police beat them, then they had been seen in an unspecified "strictly labour" term in a labour camp. The sentence had been because it was their first offence.

US GO FAST — The sure surprised they let fast, said Harvey Friedman, student from Queen's University, New York. "We were a little bit, too," he added. "The kept us the more attention have been focused on the Jews in the Soviet Union. They knew that too."

Students to watch their scheduled departure today, were on the synagogue yesterday. There were no incidents.

In between talking to the local Jews who came up to shake their hands and chat, the students prayed and chanted throughout the three-hour service.

Three of the group—Philip Kornbluth, Alan Bindiger and Philip Pulver, all of New York—led the congregation in one prayer.

Another member of the group, Joseph Klein, 19, of New York City, said that when the group arrived in the Soviet Union last Monday, members had not planned a demonstration. He declined to say what specifically prompted the protest action.

Klein said the group went to the visa office and entered a ground floor office. They told the secretaries there to leave the room, and then unfurled banners with the words: "Let my people go."

One member of the group called Western correspondents to say the demonstration was going on.

Members of the group said they were kicked and hit on the head by the police. The girls' hair was pulled. Klein said a crowd of Russians that had formed struck at them, spat on them and yelled "Zhid."

At the first police station they were taken to, attempts were made to "intimidate us." They were not allowed to call the embassy and told they would be sent to a labour camp for hooliganism and trespassing.

Later they were taken to a second station where, Klein said, "we got the kid glove treatment, including tea and cookies." The members of the group refused refreshment and were finally released and returned to their hotel.

Remains of Roman wall uncovered

A section of the Roman wall of Jerusalem, built by order of the Emperor Hadrian in the second century C.E., has been uncovered on Mount Zion by the archaeologist Magen Broshi.

Mr. Broshi told "Idm" it was fairly certain that the wall was part of Aelia Capitolina, the pagan city built by Hadrian on the ruins of Jerusalem after the suppression of the Bar Kochba revolt in 135 C.E.

The wall was found behind the Armenian Church on the western slope of Mount Zion, facing the Yehon Moshe quarter. Mr. Broshi said he believed the Roman wall was in use during the Byzantine period and also possibly in the Crusader period. (Tim)

Police seize 7 kilo of hashish in Acre

ACRE.—Seven kilograms of hashish, hidden in an empty store in the old city here, were seized by the police on Friday. The owner of the store, Alia Khawawa, was remanded for 10 days by order of a local magistrate.

Police have seized about 20 kilograms of hashish and opium during the past few months, causing a reported shortage in the district.

EASTER SUNDAY MARKED TODAY

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Christians of various denominations will this morning converge on the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem, where Easter Sunday will be celebrated by those following the Gregorian calendar, while the followers of the Julian calendar will observe the Sunday of the Veneration of the Cross, marking the beginning of Easter Holy Week for Eastern Churches.

The day's services, to be staggered throughout the day, will be led off by the traditional entry to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre by the Patriarchs and the Archbishops of the various Christian communities.

Greek Orthodox Patriarch Benedictos I, Armenian Patriarch Yeghishah Derdarian and Coptic and Syrian church heads will go in procession to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre to officiate at services marking the beginning of Easter Holy Week.

The Western churches wind up the week today with services marking Jesus' resurrection. Latin Patriarch J. J. Beilchiti will head a Pontifical High Mass early this morning, while similar services are held in all Catholic churches. Services will also be observed by the Protestant churches, some of which have planned dawn prayers, usually held at sunrise.

Celebrations by the Western churches reached their climax last night with the faithful chanting, "For He has risen as He said." The resurrection ceremony was treated with much pageantry at the Holy Sepulchre, where all atmosphere is created to match the event at which Jesus was said to have reappeared "like lightning."

On Good Friday, thousands of pilgrims, local and foreign, thronged the Old City's Via Dolorosa, retracing Jesus' last footsteps to his crucifixion.

Preceded by bearers of large crosses, some fashioned from pine tree trunks and others from highly polished wood, the pilgrims stopped at each of the 14 Stations of the Cross where Jesus was said to have paused on his final journey on earth. There were groups of various nationalities that set out at different times in the morning, although the main procession was held at 11 a.m.

The main procession along the cobbled alleyway of the eastern sector of the Old City was led by a group chanting prayers in Latin. Then a local Christian Arab group followed, praying in Arabic.

The hymns of the late groups mingled with the Moslem muezzins' call for prayer from atop the minarets in the nearby Al-Aksa mosque, on the other side of which a large Jewish congregation attended the Passover observance at the Western Wall.

Despite the usual Good Friday festive atmosphere there seemed to be less pilgrims than in previous years. "I guess a lot of people were frightened by the Middle East situation," one American pilgrim said.

There was little evidence of security measures along the route of the Good Friday procession, where order was maintained by Arab boy scouts.

Northern Ireland yesterday in the wake of a sniper attack on Friday night in Belfast's Catholic Ballymurphy area in which a soldier and three local women were wounded. The women were hit by ricochets when they rushed to help the wounded soldier. An army spokesman said their presence probably saved the soldier's life by frightening off the sniper.

British commanders have, however, alerted the 46,000 troops, 5,000 militiamen and 4,500 police to enforce security for more than 50 parades planned for Easter Sunday and Monday by Catholics and Protestants.

The Catholics march to mark the anniversary of the 1916 Easter rising in Dublin that led to Irish independence from Britain. The Protestants traditionally parade at Easter.

A spokesman for the Bogside Community Association, which had pleaded for the IRA truce for the week of Irish song and dance events, said, "We are delighted and appreciate this gesture."

But British officers said troops would maintain their patrols and arms searches throughout Londonderry during the truce and would not slacken their vigilance.

Comparative peace prevailed in the city.

The 50-member delegation will be made up of businessmen and industrialists who are members of the Arab-French Chamber of Commerce, several senior officials of the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Economy and Finance and of the French Foreign Trade Centre in Paris.

Forty-seven tons of junk and scrap iron have so far been collected from the sides of the country's main highways in a campaign to clean Israel up in time for the 25th Independence Day celebrations. The project is a joint effort by the Council for a Beautiful Israel and the Transport Ministry.

Candidates wishing to work and be paid PER HOUR are requested kindly to apply in person, at Binayal Ha'ooma, Jerusalem, on Tuesday, April 24, from 3.30-6 p.m., at Steimatzky's stand.

Egyptian war threats 'less serious' than in May 1967

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TIBERIAS. — Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir said here yesterday that Israel was taking the war threats of President Sadat less seriously than those of President Nasser in May, 1967, because of "the billions we have spent on armaments since the Six Day War." A total of IL25 billion had been spent on defence since then, and another IL40 billion would be spent during the next six years.

Answering questions at a meeting of the local Labour Party branch, Mr. Sapir said that one of the objectives of the military parade in Jerusalem on Independence Day was to let the Egyptians see that they would be ill-advised to renew the war, and he considered the IL13m cost of the parade money "well spent."

Mr. Sapir said that the strength of the country was expressed not only by its military and economic power, but also by its growing population, which had increased from 700,000 in 1948 to three million.

Sergeant forgets file: So judge refuses remand

TEL AVIV. — A local magistrate on Friday refused to remand four men suspected of planning a burglary because the police investigator did not bring his file to court.

The four — Avner and Gideon Sharabi, Yosef Shemtov and Aviel Ozeri — were arrested when the police found burglary tools and gloves in their car. Police said they believed they were on their way to commit a burglary when arrested.

But Judge Haim Shapira turned down the request of Ezer Samud Yeheskel Nahum to remand the suspects after he learned the police sergeant hadn't brought the file of his investigation to court. The sergeant said he had all the information in his head.

Without the file, the judge said, "I can't examine the police version of the case, which, with all due respect to the police, the law obliges me to do."

The judge then freed the suspects on IL2,000 bail each. (INM)

Hungary ousts Israeli

Mass. (UPI). — An asexual education instructor at the University of Massachusetts, said here that he was the Hungarian Government's international symposium Budapest last week.

He said he carried an Israeli passport and that he was in Budapest about his and affiliation with the movement.

He received an invitation to attend the 1st international symposium on motion biology in Budapest and present a paper on "biochemical analyses of biology." He said he had the Hungarian Embassy's visa good for six arrival at Budapest Air-

At breakfast the next morning a person told me I had to go to the Foreign Ministry immediately. His passport was taken from him and he was forced to stay in a room with a guard for the entire day. He was questioned intensively during the day.

The next morning he was returned to the Ministry and told to take a flight to Vienna within an hour. The interpreter had told him not to ask questions "or you will stay here a long time."

Ariel said his symposium papers and other papers he planned to use to apply for a U.S. Government grant were taken from him.

"I was the only one to my knowledge who was thrown out," he said. "I was the only one who had an Israeli passport."

Immigrant rights cutback postponed until January

Jerusalem Post Reporter

New regulations tightening the customs rules for new immigrants will be postponed for six months and will come into effect January 1974 (instead of July 1973). A recommendation to this effect was made yesterday by Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir to the Knesset Finance Committee.

The chief alteration to be postponed is that newcomers will be confined for their tax-free privileges to purchases made in their country of origin or in Israel. Now they have nine months instead of three to meet condition.

Other changes postponed until next January are the following:

- parcels sent to the immigrant after he left for Israel will no longer be duty free.
- the tariff on cars of over 2000 cc. will be raised from 25 to 50 per cent with a minimum of IL3 per kilo instead of IL1.
- the period for receiving a car with reduced taxes is extended from two years to three, but in the third year the tax exemption will be reduced by one twelfth for each month of delay, until by the end of the year, the full tax is payable.

The reason for postponing the application of the new rule is to give oim time to adapt, a treasury spokesman said.

Vietnam 'accidentally' U.S. planes finds record drug haul hit close to SAIGON (Reuters). — The South Vietnamese navy has seized what may be the world's biggest ever haul of illegal drugs — by accident. U.S. Embassy narcotics attaché William Cunningham said a Thai fishing vessel, arrested off the central coast of South Vietnam on Thursday by a patrol boat hunting for gun runners, contained more than six tons of drugs.

He estimated the value of the 5,554 kilos of raw opium and 127 kilos of morphine base found hidden in the hold of the Pasgon Samu at more than $20m. at New York wholesale prices if processed into heroin and morphine.

It would be worth many times more if it were broken down into the quantities sold on the streets of New York, where one kilo of pure heroin can fetch up to a million dollars.

The eight Thai and one Chinese — all of Thai nationality — aboard the boat face possible death penalties under tough new drug abuse laws introduced into South Vietnam last August.

Mr. Cunningham told reporters the trawler was on one of the world's major trafficking routes between Thailand and Hongkong when it was stopped in broad daylight in Vietnamese territorial waters.

Police sources said a Vietnamese navy gunboat fired across the bows of the Pasgon Samu just inside the territorial waters limit.

Sailors boarded the trawler looking for weapons but found none.

The sailors apparently did not suspect the cargo of dark brown gluey substance packed in small plastic bags and covered by sacks was raw opium. Nor did they suspect the grey blocks of morphine base stamped with characteristic trade symbols — three figure mines.

But the gunboat captain towed the trawler to Nha Trang port where authorities identified the drugs, the sources said.

U.S. narcotics experts estimate 700 tons of opium are farmed annually in the so-called Golden Triangle where white opium-producing poppies grow in the mountains of Burma, Laos and Thailand.

Phnom Penh

SAIGON. — U.S. fighter-bombers attacked Communist positions within eight kms. of the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh yesterday and Friday, while Hanoi charged the U.S. flew reconnaissance missions over North Vietnam in new violations of the Paris peace agreement.

There was no immediate comment from U.S. officials in Saigon. Supersonic U.S. jet attack planes based in Thailand raked the east bank of the Mekong River in some of the closest strikes to the Cambodian capital since the Communists launched their offensive 2½ months ago. The aim of the offensive appears to be to topple the Phnom Penh regime of President Lon Nol.

Military sources said a "critical situation" existed in areas north-west of Phnom Penh.

Field commanders radioed for urgent air drops of ammunition and supplies and asked for reinforcements.

South Vietnam yesterday rejected a Vietcong proposal to start releasing civilian prisoners, because of a dispute over the numbers held by each side.

The Vietcong also announced yesterday it has agreed to allow the international peacekeeping force to re-examine the wreckage of an April 7 helicopter crash in which nine died.

A spokesman, Col. Duong Dinh Thao, said that the Vietcong have sent a reply to the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS), approving a request for a team to re-inspect the wreckage site. The inspection is intended to settle a growing dispute as to whether two ICCS helicopters were on or off the ground when they were allegedly fired on by the Communists.

Egypt cabinet calls for 'complete mobilization'

CAIRO (UPI). — Declaring that Egypt has no alternative but to fight Israel, the government yesterday submitted to Parliament a programme calling for the "full and complete" mobilization of the nation's material and human resources.

The programme of President Anwar Sadat's cabinet was outlined to the house by Vice Premier Mohamed Abdel Kader Hatem. The statement was broadcast live by all radio and television networks.

The cabinet's programme described the current period as a "phase of destiny, a phase of life or death. We have no alternative but to carry weapons to defend our rights and our responsibilities toward our homeland and the Arab nation."

"The government's programme for the battle calls for the full and complete mobilization of all the material and human resources," Hatem said.

The Egyptian armed forces, he added, have rebuilt themselves and are "training hard to absorb every available modern weapon. They are preparing the theatre of their operations in accordance with the latest scientific methods."

Hatem said Egyptian troops were also coordinating strategy with "all the fronts that will fight the battle of destiny with me (against Israel)."

However, Hatem said, Egypt will maintain intensive diplomatic efforts to liberate Arab lands and safeguard the rights of the Palestinians.

He said a recent Egyptian diplomatic offensive, which included visits by several presidential envoys to many world capitals, was "coupled by tension along the military front, by means of which Israel attempted to defeat the objectives of this offensive."

The diplomatic offensive included a visit by presidential adviser Hafez Ismail to Washington and a meeting with President Nixon. But, Hatem said, the U.S. "as the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee (Sen. William Fulbright) has said, is largely responsible for the continued state of war in the Middle East."

"The U.S. Government sympathizes with Israel's policy and continues to strengthen Israel's capabilities, while hesitatingly conceding our right of sovereignty over our lands," Hatem said. "The U.S. Government is urged today to shoulder its responsibility as a major power and cease its supporting support of Israel that Israeli crimes may stop and that peace may be realized."

As Hatem spoke, chiefs of staff of Arab armies were meeting at the Arab League headquarters to discuss proposals for unified Arab action against Israel.

They were told by Egyptian War Minister Gen. Ahmed Ismail that their conference was "neither a show nor an act of propaganda... What we need is plenty of serious and objective action," Ismail said.

Shuttling Ugandan Asians get Easter respite in Brit

LONDON (AP). — Twenty-four Ugandan Asians, all Indian allowed to enter Britain temporarily Friday night after a week odyssey around the world because none of the countries wanted to go to would let them in.

But British immigration authorities let the weary wanderers stay for the Easter weekend when they arrived at London's Heathrow Airport from Paris.

They had spent the last two weeks in a lounge at Orly Airport. A Home Office spokesman said the group was taken to a hotel near the airport for the night because Heathrow's detention centre was full.

"They will be allowed to remain over the Easter holiday, but their case will be considered sometime tomorrow. It may be several days before a decision is made because of the holidays."

He added: "They have been given temporary admission while under refusal to enter this country."

The Asians apparently flew to New Delhi after they were thrown out of Uganda under President Idi Amin's expulsion programme last year.

But they left India March 29 for Paris and London. France refused to let them in and they were thrown out of Britain later.

They were shuttled back to New Delhi, but refused to get off the plane and were taken on to Tokyo. Japan also refused to accept them and they were sent back to Paris.

Blasts mar Greek rulers' anniversary

ATHENS (AP). — Greece yesterday began its seventh year under the authoritarian rule of Premier George Papadopoulos as bombs exploded at dawn, damaging cars, a bank and a building.

The bombs, presumably set off by opponents of the Athens government, damaged cars owned by a member of the U.S. Navy based in Greece and the chancellor of the Italian Consulate in the nearby port of Piraeus, Pietro de Martino.

The other explosions shattered the entrances to a Greek-owned bank and an apartment house in which a leading member of the pro-government Young Greek Scientists Movement lives.

There was speculation the Italian-owned car with foreign mission license plates was mistakenly thought to be owned by an American. A 20-year old Greek was wounded by the blast and there were reports one of his legs may have to be amputated.

Papadopoulos attended religious services at the city's orthodox cathedral with his government, including two of his closest associates, Deputy Premier Stylianos Pattakos and Nicholas Makris.

Troops lined the route from the cathedral to Papadopoulos' heavily guarded office in the closed parliament building.

Mitchell says he heard bugging plans discussed

WASHINGTON. — Former U.S. Attorney-General John N. Mitchell admitted on Friday to newsmen that discussions of plans to eavesdrop on Democratic leaders had been held in his presence.

But Mr. Mitchell told reporters that "no such operations were ever approved by me at any time, under any circumstances."

In marked contrast to previous statements, he admitted having the idea of wire-tapping discussed "They've always been cut off at all times and I would like to know who kept bringing them back and back and back," he said.

Following the discovery of five men with bugging equipment in the Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate complex in Washington last June 17, Mr. Mitchell had repeatedly indicated that the affair came as a complete surprise to him. He resigned as President Nixon's re-election campaign manager shortly afterward.

He testified for about three hours on Friday, before the federal grand jury investigating the Watergate case.

The "Washington Post" reported yesterday that Mr. Mitchell testified he approved payments from President Nixon's re-election campaign funds to the seven Watergate conspirators after the June arrests.

But he reportedly maintained under oath, "The Post" said, that the money was intended to pay their legal fees — not to buy their silence. He did not mention amounts of money.

The "New York Times" quoted sources close to the Watergate case yesterday as saying that White House Counsel John Dean supervised payment of more than $175,000 in $100 bills to the seven defendants and their lawyers after the June bugging. The story said the payments were to buy their silence and the money came from the re-election committee.

Mitchell is the highest former or present Nixon Administration official called before the grand jury. After his appearance, newsmen asked: "Did you swear under oath before the grand jury you had no prior knowledge of the bugging incident?"

"I have done that twice and I did today," he replied. "I testified fully, freely and openly and that's about the story."

Mitchell had testified briefly before the grand jury last fall. He had also given a deposition in a civil suit in which he denied prior knowledge of any discussions about surveillance of the Democratic National Committee, a statement he appeared to contradict Friday. (AP, Reuters)

Poisoning suspected in death of Senator Long

BOWLING GREEN, Missouri (Reuters). — A coroner has called for the exhumation of the body of former U.S. Senator Edward Long of Missouri after allegations that he might have been murdered by poisoning.

Pike County Coroner J.C. Mudd signed the death certificate after Mr. Long, 64, died last November 6, giving the cause of death as either a stroke or a cerebral vascular accident. No post mortem was performed.

But Friday, only hours after the "St. Louis Globe-Democrat" newspaper had disclosed the poisoning suggestions, the coroner said, "there's foul play involved, we certainly have to get to the bottom."

Miss Helen Dunlop, 47, Mr. Long's secretary and companion, informed authorities recently that minutes before he died Mr. Long told her he thought he had received a fatal dose of poison in a box of sweets sent to him as a gift, the paper said.

Miss Dunlop was quoted as saying: "The sweets arrived at Mr. Long's rural mansion four days before his death. She said she typed a routine letter of thanks to a man in Clayton, Missouri, a St. Louis suburb, whose business card accompanied the sweets. Neither she nor Mr. Long knew the man, she said."

In another development, Mrs. Long Friday filed a $3,250m. suit against Miss Dunlop, claiming that Miss Dunlop "concealed" her late husband and alienated his affections. The suit claimed Mrs. Long became estranged from her husband and suffered "great distress of mind and body."

In a will revised a few weeks before he died, Mr. Long bequeathed only $10 to his wife and $10 to his daughter. The bulk of his estate — estimated to be worth $2m. — was placed in trust for his five-year-old granddaughter, Elizabeth, with Miss Dunlop as executor of the estate.

Forest Hills, N.Y.

That may sound pretty ungrateful because of course we American Jews think it's wonderful that there's a Jewish State now and we're very proud of Israel for all its achievements, and we send money. Even I send money. But we get The Jerusalem Post and we just read what a tremendous rise there's been in Israel living standards just since 1967. Lots of Israelis have lots of things it says, TV's, refrigerators, gas stoves, washing machines, cars.

The Israelis here write their friends in Israel, "Come to America. Why knock yourself out in Israel? Cars cost half as much, you don't have to buy an apartment, you can rent. TV sets cost half as much, there's no annual TV tax, you can get seven different local stations on the same set and they're on almost 24 hours every day. Jobs pay twice as much, three times as much. Income taxes are lower. There's no immigration quota on how many Israelis can come. So why stay in Israel?" To their friends they write, "Come over." To us they complain. They're afraid to go out There's an Israeli Office for Professionals here in New York which uses a computer to match Israelis in America with job opportunities in Israel. They have a list of 6,000 Israeli professionals living in America. One thousand of the names have a special mark because those have indicated that they may be ready to go back to Israel in a year, maybe two years. At the most three. Maybe. The other 5,000 have refused to make such definite commitments.

Give our love to Shulamit and the missus.
All the best,
JOE

Converting printed letters into audible signals

READING BY EAR

By LIA LEVAVI
Jerusalem Post Reporter

WINNEBAGO, Ill. — Jones, reminiscent of a science fiction movie, might add a great deal to the independence of the blind, by enabling them to read printed letters into audible signals which can be learned to recognize.

Now at the Hadley School of the Blind here, receiving personal training in the use of this machine, the student, Miss Margaret Zukow, 24, is not only learning to read but also to write. The machine, which is about the size of a small transistor radio, is held in the hand and the letters are held against it. The letters are held in place by a small magnet and the sound of the letters is heard through a small speaker. The machine is held in the hand and the letters are held against it. The letters are held in place by a small magnet and the sound of the letters is heard through a small speaker.

Other types of reading machines are also being experimented with by other organizations. The Optacon is a reading device which produces printed letters as vibrations on the user's index finger. The decision whether to learn the Stereotone or the Optacon is an individual one. I think the real solution is a character recognition machine which will actually recognize the letters and spell them out to us in something resembling human speech. But so far there hasn't been much success with that.

A reading device for the blind which "recognizes" Roman letters and transcribes them instantaneously into Braille has already been developed in Israel and was reported on recently in this newspaper. But for those of us who read several alphabets, a character-recognition machine would be much more useful than the Stereotone or Optacon.

"Since the Veterans' Administration funds this project, veterans can receive training at V.A. Rehabilitation Centers. We provide training to civilians."

The Stereotone is the "third generation" in this experimental series of audio output reading machines and it is the first which the manufacturer, Mauch Laboratories of Dayton, Ohio, is willing to sell to individuals — for about a thousand dollars. The previous machine, known as the Visotone, could be obtained only through the V.A. "But I don't think any blind person can learn to use the Stereotone without training," Miss Zukow said. And after my first hard week of instruction, I tend to agree. Though many blind persons have long dreamed of the day when they could read independently, reading machines like the Stereotone are slow to "catch on." Part of the reason is that reading is still slow and difficult with maximum speeds of 40 or 50 words a minute. But the small number of blind persons who have learned to use the machine are enthusiastic. As is Dr. Eugene Murphy, director of the Prosthetic and Sensory Aids Service in the V.A.'s Research and Development Division. (Dr. Murphy is one of the people who has made the project possible.)

Public health prizes awarded to deafness expert and social worker

Jerusalem Post Staff
TEL AVIV. — A deaf expert on communications problems is one of the three persons awarded the $10,000 Piskin public health prize here on Thursday evening.

The prize, given for outstanding contributions to Israel's public health services, is awarded by the Ministry of Health and JDC/Malben in honour of JDC/Malben's first medical director, Dr. Boris Piskin. The three honorees were: Dr. Jerome Reichstein, Director of Speech and Hearing Services in the Tel Aviv Education Department; veteran social worker Mrs. Zilla Pinkerfeld, honoured for her work in rehabilitation with the Tel Aviv Municipality and the Health Ministry; and geriatrics expert Dr. Moshe Selzer, Director of the JDC/Malben hospital at Pardes Katz.

Dr. Reichstein, acknowledged to be one of the country's leading authorities on the education of children with communication disorders — is himself almost totally deaf. Born in 1925 in New York City, he suffered an attack of severe mastoiditis when he was one year old, losing all his hearing in one ear and half in the other. Dr. Reichstein attended the Lexington School for the Deaf in New York until the age of 12, when he entered a regular elementary school, going on later to a regular high school. He received his B.A. from

New York University in 1947 and his M.A. from Columbia University's Teachers College in 1949, where he specialized in the education of the deaf.

After returning to the Lexington School as a teacher and marrying, Dr. Reichstein decided in 1954 to immigrate to Israel. Once here, he served as first director of the Michal Association for Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Children in Tel Aviv. In 1961 he returned to the U.S. to study at Columbia University for his doctorate in special education. On his return to Israel he headed the Michal centre and became the director of the country's first course for teachers of the deaf.

In 1968, he assumed his present post as Director of Speech and Hearing Services in the Tel Aviv Education Department, a position which was created with the assistance of JDC/Malben. He is also a senior lecturer at Tel Aviv University's School of Communication Disorders, professional consultant to the Shema Parents Association for Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Children, and chairman of the Israel Speech and Hearing Association.

Slum volunteers
Mrs. Zilla Pinkerfeld, who trained as a teacher of nature studies, discovered in 1940 that social work had greater meaning for her. After first working as a volunteer in the Tel Aviv slums, she completed a course in social work and joined the city's Family Service Department. From the very beginning she placed heavy emphasis on helping members of needy families to earn a living. When the Municipality set up a new rehabilitation department she was appointed its head, and helped to establish some of the country's first sheltered workshops.

On transferring to the Ministry of Health as its chief social worker, Mrs. Pinkerfeld stressed the need for rehabilitation services, including projects to help chronically ill, house-bound patients perform some kind of work. In 1968, with the professional and financial help of JDC/Malben, she initiated a study of the types of work housebound people can perform and set about finding factories willing to cooperate. The project, begun on an experimental basis in Rishon LeZion and then extended to Rehovot and Lydda, now brings work to the disabled at home, teaches them how to perform their tasks, and returns the finished products to the factories. Over 100 persons are included in the programme.

The third winner, Dr. Moshe Selzer, was born in 1920 in Kishinev, immigrated to Israel in 1946 and received his medical degree from the Hebrew University in 1952. From the beginning of his practice at various Government hospitals Dr. Selzer indicated a special interest in the care of aged and chronically ill patients. In 1955 he joined the staff of JDC/Malben's central hospital at Pardes Katz where the emphasis is on caring for the aged and on their rehabilitation, wherever possible. He has been director of the institution since 1965.

A notable development during Dr. Selzer's tenure at the Pardes Katz centre has been the establishment of services for aged persons living in neighbouring communities. These were among the first such outpatient services in the country. He also played a leading role in helping train young doctors in geriatrics and in advising other institutions on the establishment of services for the aged.

Today's prize-awarding ceremony will hear addresses from Health Ministry Director-General Dr. Baruch Padash and Prof. Yitzhak Margulec, JDC/Malben medical director. Dr. Yosef Silberstein, director of the Health Ministry's Department of Chronically Ill and Rehabilitation, will outline the achievements of the award winners. One of the latter, Dr. Reichstein, will deliver a lecture on "Communication Disorders: a New Challenge in Education and Public Health."

Low-fat diet for dairy cows

ATLANTIC CITY (AP). —

A NEW diet for dairy cows may reduce the level of saturated fats in milk. The diet doubles the amount of desirable poly-unsaturated fatty acids in the milk, according to scientists from the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center.

Animal products — meat, milk and eggs — are major sources of saturated fats in the human diet. Saturated fats have been linked to rising blood cholesterol levels, and these in turn are a risk factor in heart disease.

Cattle and sheep, although they eat low fat foods, create high levels of saturated fats in meat and milk because micro-organisms convert the poly-unsaturated fats in their diet to saturated fats during the digestive process.

Australian scientists have developed a method of coating the animal's dietary poly-unsaturates so that they are not converted. The Ohio researchers, Dr. Donald L. Palmquist and Wilson R. Mattos, told the 57th annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology on Tuesday, that they worked on another method of protecting poly-unsaturated oils fed to dairy cows.

A mixture of water and soyflour was put together, with the soyflour containing 10 to 12 per cent linoleic acid, a major poly-unsaturated fatty acid. The resulting product was dried out and eight pounds a day of it was fed to each of three lactating Jersey cows.

"The experimental diet effectively increased the level of poly-unsaturated fatty acids in the milk fat from 10 to 19 per cent," the Ohio researchers reported.

Saturated fatty acid in the milk fat was reduced from 56 to 40 per cent, they said.

Thymus hormone 'affects aging'

BRIAN SULLIVAN

ATLANTIC CITY (AP). — "Thymus hormone produced by the thymus gland is directly related to the aging process," scientists reported Monday. The hormone, called thymosin, dramatically with age and appears to be a major factor in the aging process.

Thymosin levels contributing by retarding the body's natural defence mechanism, the immune system, to combat disease, according to Dr. Allan Goldstein.

"It has been found," Goldstein said, "that Thymosin levels decrease significantly between the ages of 25 to 45 in normal individuals. This direct evidence provides a testable hypothesis that decreased immunity with age is due to a defect or insensitivity of the Thymus gland to produce Thymosin."

Goldstein, 35-year-old director of the Biochemistry Division at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, described the research to the 57th annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for experimental biology.

"We hope," Goldstein said, "to find a way to increase a patient's immunological response to diseases by manipulating the amount of Thymosin in the blood. We know that the injection of mice with Thymosin increases their immunity and resistance to disease, and we have good reason to suppose it will do the same in man."

The Thymus gland, which is beneath the breast bone, apparently is the master gland of the immune system, Goldstein said. Thymosin, he said, appears to be the controlling agent of the "part" of the immune system concerned with what is called "cell-mediated immunity," the resistance to viral and fungal infections, organ transplants and cancers.

Goldstein told a news conference that patients with Hodgkins disease and chronic leukemia, both forms of cancer, have low blood levels of Thymosin.

"Recent experimental and clinical studies," Goldstein said, "have shown that the failure of the Thymus gland to function properly is a major factor in a number of debilitating and often fatal diseases of children and adults. This includes a wide variety of auto-immune diseases and cancers."

An auto-immune disease is one in which the body's defence mechanism, specifically the white blood cells processed by the Thymus gland, fails to recognize its own tissue and tries to destroy it as though the tissue were a foreign invader.

Portage of youth leaders Jewish clubs in U.K.

Jerusalem Post Correspondent

Jewish youth clubs are finding it difficult to attract Jewish leaders. In cases non-Jews have joined. 8,000 Jewish youngsters or out of those between the ages of 10 and 20 are in non-Zionist Jewish youth clubs here, while about five per cent are in Zionist youth clubs such as Habonim or Enel Akiva. The non-Zionist clubs have virtually no Jewish or Israeli content apart from the fact that the membership is Jewish.

Mordechai Bar-On, head of the Youth and Rehabs Department of the Jewish Agency, wants to introduce a Jewish and Israeli cultural element into such clubs. He wants to make the members more aware of their Jewish identification, rather than to encourage them to immigrate to Israel, he said on a visit here last week.

Last summer the Jewish Agency sent five British university graduates to Israel for a year of study at the Hebrew University's Paul Baerwald School of Social Work. The graduates have undertaken to return to Britain to work as leaders in youth clubs for at least two years.

Mr. Bar-On says he hopes to double the number of graduates next year and to extend the programme to France as well.

Landlords wanted a 'reasonable' rent or else a subsidy

In the Supreme Court sitting as High Court of Justice

Before Justices Cohn, Mity, and Etzioni.

Avraham Toviv & Others, Petitioners, v. Government of Israel, Respondents (H.C. 120/73).

LAW REPORT

Edited by Doris Linkin

SUNDAY, APRIL 22, 1978

HIGH COURT WILL NOT INTERFERE WITH RENT REGULATIONS

The High Court of Justice dismissed a petition for an order
calling on the Government to show cause why they should not make regulations altering the maximum rent rates.

Section 45 (a) of the Tenants Protection Law (Consolidated Version) 1972, empowers the Government to make regulations altering the minimum and maximum rates
of rent provided they do not do so more than once a year.

After the Government had refrained from altering the maximum rate of rent for more than a year
the petitioners, who are landlords, petitioned the High Court of Justice
for an order calling upon the Government to show cause why they should not make regulations fixing a "reasonable" rent, and subsidizing the poor who cannot pay higher rents; or, alternatively, why they should not grant landlords a subsidy to cover the difference between a "reasonable" rate of rent and the maximum rate fixed by them (the Government) in regulations.

Mr. Olshansky appeared for the petitioners.

Justice Cohn, who delivered the first opinion of the High Court of Justice, Justice Mity concurring, noted that the petitioners had argued, first, that the Government was discriminating against landlords as in contradiction to other dealers
in price-controlled goods, they received no subsidies, and in contrast to others pursuing restricted, or statute-controlled, trades, they were not allowed to close down their business by getting rid of their tenants; and, secondly, that the maximum rents fixed by the Government were unreasonable, whereas the rule is that regulations must be reasonable.

The answer to these arguments
is, in short, held Justice Cohn, that even on the unproved presumption that there be anything discriminatory or unreasonable in the maximum rates of rent and in the prohibition against getting rid of protection tenants, these acts emanated from the Knesset, which was all-powerful, and over which the High Court had no control. As to subsidies, he continued, the Government may grant subsidies only if authorized to do so in the budget laws passed by the Knesset; and if it be argued that the Government
generally takes the initiative in proposing subsidies to the Knesset and that these proposals are usually adopted, the answer to that is that the rent restrictions were imposed by the Knesset itself and if the Knesset had wished to soften the blow to the landlords by granting them a subsidy it could, and should,

have done so in the Tenants Protection Law.

Justice Cohn then went on to explain on his reply to the argument that the Government was in duty bound to make reasonable regulations. It is true, he noted, that the High Court could disqualify regulations made by subsidiary legislation, if they be unreasonable. But in the present case the regulations concerning maximum rents by the Government in the past had received the approval of the Knesset, and could thus not be invalidated, even if unreasonable. So that, in fact, the petitioners were actually seeking to prevent the Government from making regulations in the future which they knew from bitter experience they had good cause to fear and were trying to forestall any such regulations by asking the High Court to order the Government to fix only "reasonable" rent rates. However, held Justice Cohn, it must be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that the maker of regulations will act in accordance with the law and will not exceed his powers by making unreasonable regulations — a rule that holds even if the same maker of regulations had already made unreasonable regulations in the past (which he was far from alleging against the Government in connection with the maximum rent regulations). In other words, even if it were a fact that in the past unreasonable rent maxima regulations were made, this would not constitute a cause, per se, for moving the High Court to order the Government to make only reasonable regulations in the future. Furthermore, he continued, the petitioners had not revealed what they considered to be "reasonable" regulations and the High Court would not order a competent authority to do something without going into explicit detail. For if they were merely to order the Government to make "reasonable" regulations that would mean leaving the decision as to what is reasonable to the discretion of the Government and thus rendering their intervention completely ineffective.

He thought, therefore, concluded Justice Cohn, that the petition for an order should be dismissed.

Justice Etzioni

In concurring that the petition
should be dismissed, Justice Etzioni devoted a few remarks to what he considered the undesirable practice,

which has lately become widespread, of bringing petitions, which are obviously doomed to failure,
before the High Court, and in this way to give public vent to grievances. In the present case, he said, the petitioners had obviously intended to bring to the attention of the public the discrimination against landlords which they have been bitterly denouncing for years, without having any real expectation of getting relief from the High Court.
But with all the understanding and sympathy which he felt for the petitioners and their ilk and to which he had already given expression in C.A. 299/73 (1 P.D.
27/258) (where he had said that landlords were being denied the right to reap the benefits they could normally expect from their property), held Justice Etzioni, he nevertheless could not condone a petition to the High Court of Justice on a matter which was one of policy, par excellence, and which came, therefore, as is well-known, within the exclusive province of the Knesset or the Government.

The rule of law, Justice Etzioni went on to hold, is based on the separation of the executive, legislative and judiciary arms, and while the High Court retained the right to control and criticize subsidiary legislation, it would do so only on the rarest of occasions, when satisfied that the subsidiary legislation was patently unreasonable. He stated that the petitioners' petition in him by the Knesset, or when the subsidiary legislation was so unreasonable as to preclude the possibility that the Knesset had intended vesting the subsidiary legislation with the power to make it. In the case under consideration, however,
not only were the regulations which the petitioners were challenging consistent with the wishes of the Knesset, but they had been expressly adopted by the Knesset and constituted an integral part of the Tenants Protection Law. In fact, continued Justice Etzioni, a careful scrutiny of the petition shows that the petitioners were in fact challenging the Tenants Protection Law itself and asking for the High Court's intervention in a matter of pure policy — which was patently unadvisable.

He could, therefore, only reiterate again, concluded Justice Etzioni, that the High Court of Justice should not be made a free-for-all for all complaints, whatever their nature, and that members of the public who are dissatisfied with the implementation of any enactment of the Knesset should address their complaints to that body (see also H.C. 107/50, 1 P.D. 5/529).

Petition dismissed.
Reasoned decision given on March 29, 1978.

Contamination feared in canned U.S. mushrooms

WASHINGTON (UPI). — Thousands of food products including frozen chicken dinners destined for first-class passengers on an airline, are being recalled because of possible botulism poisoning, the Food and Drug Administration said here yesterday.

The products, ranging from pizzas
and bagels to beef steaks and shish-kabab, all contain mushrooms canned by the Fran Mushroom Company of Ravenna, New York.

All of that firm's mushrooms, an estimated 500,000 pounds, are being recalled because of suspected botulism bacteria, including those now incorporated into the food products of other firms.

The FDA said it had no way of knowing immediately how many of the products are still on grocery shelves or in homes, or how many have been consumed. But it said there have been no reports of botulism poisoning. (Botulism poisoning can cause illness and death.)

The air-borne dinners involved were sold to United Airlines, but it was not known whether any of them had been consumed.

A computer to catch computer criminals

MENLO PARK, California (AP). —
The best detective for nabbing persons who use a computer as a partner in crime is a computer.
reports Don B. Parker, a researcher in computer abuse and security.

"I have studied 130 cases of computer crime and almost every one was discovered by accident," Mr. Parker said last Friday at Stanford Research Institute (SRI).

In one of these, an accountant
embezzled $1m. from his company in six years. The accountant used a computer to limit the amount he took at any one time
and to distribute the shortage among accounts where it wouldn't be noticed, Mr. Parker said.

Other illegal operations by skilled programme manipulators included the stealing of corporation information or assets and the theft or copying of computer programmes. "If all we're doing up to now is accidentally discovering these things, one wonders
how much of this kind of criminal activity is going on that never gets detected," he said.

"The computer itself is the ideal tool for detecting wrongful manipulation of its systems," reported Mr. Parker, who heads SRI studies on computer security, and has worked more than six years on analysing criminal use of data-processing systems. He has designed a detection and reporting system for a large bank
as a model for techniques to uncover any illegal activities.

Mr. Parker said the computer can be programmed for continuous checking of the smallest details and in a random fashion.
"The penetrator with an embezzling or theft scheme in mind
may even know the basic rules of the detection system," he said.

"But he still can't know what changes are being made, day by day, hour by hour or minute by minute."

For instance, an attempted retrieval of confidential information
would be reported by the computer with the names of the people running, using and guarding
it at the time, he said.

From these the security people can check for any possible collusion or unusual activity patterns,
he said.

Most of the computer outlaws are in trusted positions at the time they commit their crimes
and have never been in trouble with the police, he said. "They differ from their colleagues in that they have serious personal problems and succumb to the temptation of solving them by using a computer for fraudulent gain," he said.

Mr. Parker reported one computer expert stole $1m. worth of equipment by penetrating a large corporation's order and distribution system. He said the man told him that he regarded taking from a corporation justifiable if he could get away with it. But the man said that, if he found a money-filled wallet in the street,
he would return it to the owner
"just like any normal person."

Twelve French, Japanese, Swiss
and U.S. banks are participating

Fuel shortage brings station closures in U.S.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP). — Certified Oil Co., an independent refiner, has announced that it will close 40
of its 265 petrol stations as a result of a fuel shortage.

About 20 employees will be laid off by the closing of the stations in Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and West Virginia.

An official of the company predicted that the price of petrol would be 50 cents a gallon in the next few months unless the U.S.
Government and courts backed down on petroleum industry curbs.
He said that although the retail prices for big oil companies had been frozen, wholesale prices had increased 7 cents a gallon.

U.S. tax men seize estate of financier

BOSTON (UPI). — The Internal Revenue Service has seized the 500-acre country estate of multimillionaire financier Edward Krook, who is charged with income tax law violations involving more than $6m.

Six IRS agents were stationed Friday at the gates to Krook's scenic farm in Massachusetts to guard against the removal of any of his estate, worth over $40m.

Krook, 61, a Lithuanian immigrant's son who quit school at the age of 15 to sell newspapers, is one of the world's richest men. He was indicted April 11 by a Federal Grand Jury on charges of evading
$1.4m. in income taxes and filing fraudulent income tax returns from 1966 to 1969.

The case is the largest criminal
tax action in U.S. history, the U.S.
Attorney's office said. Krook, a close friend of the Kennedy family, was reported to be aboard his 50-
metre yacht in the Bahamas.
If convicted, Krook faces maximum penalties of $50,000 in fines and 27 years in prison. The financier has more than $800m. worth of interests in the fields of insurance, banking, motion pictures and manufacturing, the U.S. Attorney's office said.

Rumania to mine Zambian copper

LUSAKA (Reuters). — A joint Rumanian-Zambian mining company is to be formed to exploit the Mo-kamba copper deposits close to Zambia's border with Zaïre, the Ministry of Mines and Mining Development disclosed here.

The announcement follows the signing of an aide memoire in Lusaka last Thursday by government officials and Rumania's Minister of Mines, Oil and Geology, Bujor Al-masan.

A ministry spokesman said Rumania was also ready to offer Zambia project and design services, technical equipment and experts and construction facilities to help develop small and medium-size mineral deposits. The two sides had agreed to examine the possibility of future cooperation in other fields, including technical assistance in the producing of coke and other products
from Zambian coal, the spokesman added.

A NEW NAME IN ISRAEL

B

Thus in the end the three largest powers abstained from the vote, the U.S. because the censure of the terrorists was inadequate, the Soviet Union because the denunciation of Israel was too strong and China because of the oblique reference to the terrorists. They were joined by Guinea, which perhaps likes to play in the big league. There has rarely been a more striking illustration of the self-defeating behaviour of the Security Council's structure. The pity is that the relatively neutral nations are drawn into supporting these resolutions, which have so little to do with the issue under consideration by the time the bargaining is ended.

Our ambassador to the U.N., Yosef Tekoaeh, served us well, as he has so often done before. His invective is sharp and to the point, and often memorable. For should it be forgotten that it is to keep up this vigorous opposition in an arena where almost everybody is hostile.

Soviet trade agreement, or whether it is really a firm policy decision." Hatsafe (National Religious) writes on the 12th convention of the Bnei Akiva movement. Hamodia (Agudat Yisrael) writes in praise of yeshiva students who are strict observers of Jewish religious precepts.

well-rounded picture of the prospects for peace and the role which Bonn might play — within Europe, within the Common Market and within the United Nations.

Significantly, when Mr. Brandt arrives in Israel he will already have consulted with Marshall Tito of "neutralist" Yugoslavia, with U.S. President Richard Nixon and Soviet Party Leader Leonid Brezhnev. The Chancellor may also visit one or more Arab countries before the year is out.
